Kyoto Aquarium: The aquarium showcases the underwater ecosystems from the source of Kyoto's rivers right out to the sea, You'll see a great variety of nature represented in the 12 exhibition areas. Must-sees include Japanese giant salamanders, which are designated as a Special Natural Monument, and dolphins performing tricks with Umekoji Park stretching out behind them.

Kyoto Railway Museum: A museum where visitors can learn about the modernization of Japan, through the history of the railway system which first opened in Kyoto - a place where efforts to promote innovation while preserving traditions are constantly being made. The museum appeals not only to railway fans, but also to the general public with its exhibitions that allow visitors to learn about the safety of rail transportation and railway technologies as well as workshops run by employees of West Japan Railway Company, mainly at the weekend.
